available to the OCLC website, as the information below offers only a short outline of all available options.

New accounts and passwords
To accommodate access to the HPB Database in the OCLC environment, all CERL Members were issued with FirstSearch accounts and passwords in September 2007. Accounts and password for access through the Connexion platforms will be made available in October 2007.

FirstSearch

FirstSearch is an online service which gives access to a rich collection of reference databases. The HPB Database has been mounted on this platform, which offers similar functionalities to RLG's Eureka interface. In fact, the facilities are even slightly more extensive, in that the platform also offers

- cross searching of up to three databases,
- multiple interface languages,
- search options that include operators for proximity and plurals, as well as wildcards, and
- highlighting of search terms in search results.

The FirstSearch interface was enhanced to incorporate CERL's Assisted Searching functionality (based on the CERL Thesaurus and offering variant place and personal names) and the Annotations Facility that had already been successfully integrated in the CERL Thesaurus – allowing HPB users to share their views on the record contents with other users.

The following website provides you with a first introduction into the FirstSearch search capabilities <http://www.oclc.org/support/documentation/firstsearch/>; another useful resource is <http://www.oclc.org/support/documentation/firstsearch/using/basicsrefcard/FSbasics.pdf>.

In the First Search environment, the HPB Database is also available through Z39.50 and by making use of IP recognition (see below).
